PUBLIC LECTURE

'Global Policing'

Professor James Sheptycki, York University

There is no such thing as a global police force, but there is global policing. The seminar presentation explores how the phenomena of global policing can be made theoretically visible. The work presented draws on two recently published books: B. Bowling and J. Sheptycki (2012) Global Policing (London: Sage) and J. Sheptycki (2011) Transnational Crime and Policing (London: Ashgate).

Profile

James Sheptycki is Professor of Criminology in the Department of Social Science at York University. His special research expertise revolves around issues of transnational crime and policing. He has written on a variety of substantive criminological topics including domestic violence, serial killers, money laundering, drugs, public order policing, organized crime, police accountability, intelligence-led policing, witness protection, risk and insecurity. He is currently engaged in research concerning 'guns, crime and social order'.
